Wallner Builders Helps Home Owners Save Energy and Money

-Area remodeler implements superior construction strategies during remodeling process – or stand alone –

[Butler, Wis., July 1, 2009] – Wallner Builders provides homeowners peace of mind knowing their existing home will be comfortable, safe, durable and energy-efficient. As an ally in the Home Performance with ENERGY STAR® Program, Wallner Builders offers homeowners real solutions to energy use.

Providing a whole-house approach to improve the energy efficiency in existing homes, Wallner Builders works with an independent consultant to remodel or correct homes to meet or exceed Home Performance with ENERGY STAR requirements and standards for building performance. These include completion of a pre-correction whole-house performance test, site visits during construction to address key building performance details and re-testing of the home after completion to ensure top performance. A report listing specific information on the home’s performance is provided to the homeowner and certified contractors. The report details specific measures which will offer real energy savings and potential rewards from Wisconsin’s Focus on Energy®. After construction is complete or alterations are implemented, a re-test is performed to verify effectiveness, and a rewards application is submitted on the homeowners behalf.

Wallner Builders Has Long History of Satisfying Homeowners

Wallner Builders was founded in 1975. Over its nearly 35-year history, the company has long stood for and provided top energy performance in all of its projects. The alliance with the Home Performance with ENERGY STAR is a logical extension of its aim to provide clients with maximum energy performance in their homes.

The Wisconsin ENERGY STAR Homes Program is a voluntary program designed to provide a variety of services – from consulting, performance testing and troubleshooting new homes to education and training for builders, contractors and homeowners in the new construction market. It operates in coordination with independent, professional building consultants throughout the state who are accredited to deliver program services to an increasing number of builders in the state, like Wallner Builders. Currently more than 350 builders participate in the Wisconsin ENERGY STAR Homes Program.
